GREENWAY MEDICAL TECHNOLOGIES AWARDED 2006 “BEST IN KLAS” FOR AMBULATORY EMR PRACTICES OF BETWEEN 6-25 PHYSICIANS

February 26, 2007, Carrollton, Ga. – Greenway Medical Technologies Inc., a leading provider of integrated Electronic Health Records (EHR), practice management and interoperability functionality, today received the 2006 “Best in KLAS” achievement award for PrimeSuite® in the Ambulatory EMR category for practices consisting of between 6-25 physicians. PrimeSuite integrates a medical practice’s clinical, financial, and administrative processes, streamlining workflow and enhancing practice profitability.

Greenway® received the prestigious KLAS award at the annual HIMSS conference in New Orleans, Louisiana. Executives for Greenway Medical Technologies proudly accepted the award on behalf of the company.

“We are honored to receive this industry achievement award from the KLAS organization,” said Tommy Green, chairman and CEO of Greenway Medical Technologies. “It is humbling to know that actual users of PrimeSuite were so satisfied that they rated PrimeSuite number one. This award is important because it generates significant awareness amongst potential users as ambulatory practices are searching diligently for EHRs that possess the inherent clinical workflow to support their daily documentation requirements. PrimeSuite is proven to have that.”

Greenway has been highly rated by KLAS since its users began ranking EHR systems. Greenway previously received the 2004 “Best in KLAS” achievement award for PrimeSuite in the Ambulatory Billing and Scheduling category for practices consisting of between 1-5 physicians. In 2005, Greenway’s PrimeSuite was the category leader in Ambulatory EMR for practices having between 1-5 physicians as well as the category leader for practices having between 6-25 physicians in KLAS’s 2005 Top 20 Mid-Year Report Card.
